A. J. Davis, acting mayor and president of the council, took it upon himself to which was endorsed by the council.

After the mayor's letter removing Vail "for the good of the service" had been read, John Holley, Democrat, asked that it be referred to the fire committee.

"I am a member of that committee," he said, "and I have never been informed that anything was wrong. Mr. Murdoch, another member of the opposition, is also on that committee, and he sition, is also on that committee, and he has never been consulted in this matter, it seems to me that the party in power has gone too far and that this matter should be thoroughly investigated."

The roll was called on this motion and it was lost, it to 3, as follows:

Nays—Black, Fernstrom, Ferry, Hall, Martin, Murdoch, Raybould, Reedall, Stewart, Wood and President Davis—11.

"The recommendation of the mayor is concurred in," chanted President Davis, and Charles T. Vail, with those words, ceased to serve the city.

Immediately after this vote was taken the communication from Davis removing Crosby was read and approved, Holley alone voting in the negative.

Asked if he had any statement to make, former Chief Vail smiled and replied that he knew of nothing further he could say. "I am not through yet," he declared, and I will soon find out who is back of these unwarranted charges which have been made against me. I know that I am not guilty and at least have that consolation. While the members of the city council were speedily disposing of the services of the fire chief and his assistant, both Chief the fire chief and his assistant, both Chief Vail and Assistant Chief Crosby were busily answering fire alarms. The first call for the department was from the carnival in Salt Lake be a success? It would. Why, the people in Salt Lake had fallen into the bunting draped over the entrance of the saloon. The bunting caught fire and the firemen from Station No. 1, with Chief Vail and Assistant Chief Crosby, responded. The bunting was torn down and the blaze put out with the chemical.

A few minutes after the first call for the department came in a piece of canvas on the roof of the Calloway, Hoock & Francis and the Mehesy fur store, 159 and 161 South Main street, caught fire. Charles T. Vail was ousted as chief of the fire department by the unanimous vote of the council last evening.

James Devine, the "Republican-American" politician and former chief, did not, however, land the job, as Mayor John S. Bransford last evening wired A. S. Fowler, his private secretary, to withhold the appointment from the council until he returns from California.

This action on the part of the mayor was taken after he had received a lengthy wire from the persuaders yesterday protesting against Devine's appointment.

would have been more left scattered upon the asphaltum had it not been that much was carried off upon the hats and the shoulders of the men and in the hair of the women who filled the streets to see the parade which last night closed the festivities of the United Commercial Travelers in Salt Lake.

It is true that the parade was not wonderful pageant, but, for all that, the people who thronged the streets had a delightful time watching the fireworks from the roofs of the cullen, the Wilson and the Kenyon hotels, dodging showers of confetti, twirling electric sparklers, and scattering when the fire department engines and trucks went tearing down Main street in response to an alarm of fire from Second South and Main streets. This was as the U. C. T. parade was moving south from First South street, and the paraders, like the spectators, had to scatter in obedience to the insistent clangor of the gongs of the fire vehicles. The men in line were equal to the emergency. Instead of becoming hopelessly demoralized and getting lost in the surg-ing crowd which threatened to swallow up the parade, the marchers kept reso-lutely on, sidestepped the engines and trucks that impeded their way and con-tinued to the end of the line of march.

Evening of Merrymaking.

While the paraders were disentangling themselves from the crowd and the maze of vehicles that impeded their progress, the firemen raised a ladder to the roof of the building occupied by Callaway, Hoock & Francis and the Mehesy fur store and ascended with a chemical to yet been called to take up the matter. It is a thing that will take shape as the interest in the idea increases.

"But what will we call the carnival? That is an interesting point. We want a name.

Parade Is Picturesque.

The parade last night was formed in front of the Commercial club building. It was led by Held's band. After the musicians walked members of the U. C. In the uniforms they were in the street parade last Thursday afternoon. Next came a wierd group, with their heads concealed with masks shaped like the heads of enormous roosters. Back of these walked more commercial travelers, who, not being in uniform, were joined by numerous half-grown urchins, who were eager to get some of the electric sparklers which were distributed to the marchers.

Then there were several carriages and a party of youths and young girls, clad in Swedish native costume, who will take part in the Swedish midsummer restival at Lagoon today. The parade passed through First South, Second South, State and Main streets and then disbanded, the marchers joining

This was scattered with reckless disregard to the havoc wrought upon the broadcloth backs of sedate professional men and the hats and garments of passing women. With the appearance of the talcum powder there was a rapid disappearance from the streets of modish bonnets and as the hour grew late the sidewalks were surrendered to those who had wisely donned their old clothes and nad nothing to fear from chalk of tal-

When Liberty is License

The lamentable spectacle of young ruffians converting a pleasant street carnival into a riotous and dangerous disturbance was witnessed last night on Main street. It was the old story of the vicious element taking advantage of a temporary relaxation of police authority to vent their natural appetite for assailing defenseless women.

Following the parade of the Commercial Travelers the downtown streets were taken possession of by gangs of hoodlums, who were responsible for rowdyism in its most aggravated forms. These rowdies threw talcum powder and even cayenne pepper in the eyes of the people on the street. Confetti was scooped up out of the dirt and thrown into the faces of women and wirls.

At the Z. C. M. I. drug store T. Cleghorn, the druggist, treated four little children and a woman into whose eyes cayenne pepper had been thrown. All five of the victims were suffering excruciating paint when they were taken into the drug store. Their eyes were washed out by the clerk and medicine was applied to relieve the pain. Several persons were momentarily blinded by talcum powder thrown in their eyes.

Gangs of rowdies marched up and down the street, insulting women and throwing confetti and talcum powder. Several gangs of these young ruffiains tore bunting off buildings and with this encircled young women and dragged them through the street. The police made no arrests, but allowed the disorder to prevail from early in the evening until nearly midnight. At a late hour detectives went through Main street and took away cans of talcum powder from the more boisterous of the disturbers.
